

Pavlos Floros, Vice President for Finance (CFO)

Pavlos Floros has served Anatolia College since December 2009 as Acting Vice President for Finance and prior to that he worked as Director of Accounting Services. He is responsible for all financial management aspects of institutional operations, including the supervising of financial planning, accounting and budgeting efforts at all three divisional levels.

He also oversees the approval and processing of revenue, expenditure, departmental budgets, payroll and mass salary updates, ledger, and account maintenance and data entry. He is charged with interacting with the VP of Administration in negotiations with external vendors. He also oversees the financial management of Anatolia's US operations in Boston.

The CFO also coordinates the preparation of financial statements, financial reports, special analyses, and information reports. Develop and implement finance, accounting, billing, and auditing procedures. Establish and maintain appropriate internal control safeguards.

Before joining Anatolia, Floros was an Audit Manager at KPMG Greece leading audit engagement teams, with specialization in IFRS and USGAAP engagements, and listed Companies. At KPMG, he served clients to address critical business issues and applied "best practices" in several industries including higher education, banking, insurance, industrial and consumer products. Prior to working at KPMG, Pavlos had been a Supervising Senior Auditor with Deloitte Greece working in the Firm's Audit Department specializing in statutory and non statutory audits, internal control environment evaluations, due diligences and other consulting services.

Floros is a Certified Public Accountant and Auditor in Greece, and he is a registered member of the Hellenic Body of Certified Public Accountants (SOEL). He also holds a First Class licence for the accountancy profession and he is member of the Economic Chambers of Greece. He received his Masters in Science in International Economics Banking & Finance with Distinction from Cardiff Business School. He also earned a Postgraduate Diploma from the Hellenic Institute of Certified Public Accountants (IESOEL) and graduated from Aristotle University, School of Law & Economics, with a Bachelor's Degree in Economics. He is married and is the father of a boy and a girl – both of whom are enrolled at Anatolia Elementary School.